Business Spokesmen Urging Tax Changes

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 2.—While indorsing Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau's tax revision plan, spokesmen for organized business went before the house ways and means committee today to urge far-reaching tax changes to speed business recovery.

Tax experts of the Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. approved a proposal to abolish the undistributed profits tax and reduce the corporation income tax rates, now ranging from 16½ to 19 per cent on larger corporations, to 15 per cent.

Give Business Chance

The committee was told that congress should plan a wholesale revision of tax laws in the future in an effort to remove inequities and to give business "a chance to live and grow."

Big business' indorsement of the limited tax revision program to remove "business irritants," as suggested by Secretary Morgenthau, increased chances of a tax bill being enacted by July 1.

Witnesses called before the committee today included Ellsworth C. Alvord, Chamber of Commerce of the U. S.; Merryle S. Rukeyser, International News Service economic commentator; Noel Sargent, National Association of Manufacturers; M. L. Seidman, New York Board of Trade; Julian De Bryne Kops, counsel for the receiver of the Title Guaranty and Trust Company of Baltimore, and Richard Baker, of Washington, D. C.

Would Stimulate Business

Alvord, a former assistant secretary of the treasury, proposed a flat corporation tax on the ground that it would produce revenue to meet the treasury's estimates with stimulation of business. He supported repeal of the undistributed profits tax, a levy fought by the Chamber of Commerce when it was enacted three years ago.

"We are for the proposals of Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau," he said. "We think that they are fine as far as they go."

Meantime, Chairman Harrison, of the senate finance committee, said that a limited program of tax revision along lines suggested by Morgenthau would receive prompt consideration in the senate. The committeee, he said, will strive to have the program enacted by July 1 if the house passes a bill following the treasury's program.

FIND DRIVER FROZEN TO DEATH IN TRUCK

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 2.—Two curious men early today swung open the heavy, insulated door of a large ice cream truck parked overly long in the street and found the hunched up body of the driver, Louis Bolter, 35, who had slowly frozen to death.

Quite a number of people have viewed the body in hopes of establishing identification, but so far no one seems to have ever seen the man around this district. President Unable To Attend Press Conference Today Due To Illness

NO INFORMATION ABOUT PARLEY

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The nature of President Roosevelt's White House conference with Secretary of Commerce Hopkins and eight business leaders last night was left to speculation today when the president cancelled his Friday press conference.

The sinus attack which forced the chief executive to spend most of yesterday in bed and to forego dining with his guests last night, caused him to call off his conference with reporters.

The press had expected the president to disclose what occurred at last night's meeting at today's press conference since his guests said he would have to do "all the talking." All were members of Secretary Hopkins' business advisory council.

Accomplishments Of Legislature Largely Satisfy Gov. James

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, June 2.—Gov. Arthur H. James today expressed himself as satisfied with the legislature's accomplishments.

"As a whole I'm satisfied with what the legislature has done," he said.

Asked whether he felt he had obtained substantially what he wanted of the session he replied:

"With the exception of the anthracite regulatory act and some other changes which I would have liked in the liquor laws." The governor also expressed disappointment at the failure of the senate version of the Snyder milk act.

Governor James said that with the legislature adjourned he felt that appointments to state executive positions might be forthcoming "in the course of the next week or so." These appointments will be to the public utility commission, the securities commission, the milk control commission, workmen's compensation boards and compensation referees, department of public instruction, and many others.

Commenting on the sale yesterday by the state of $100,000,000 anticipation notes for a record low bid cost to the state of .44 per cent, the governor said that it was "rather gratifying to see them make a bid that was the lowest in the history of the commonwealth." The notes, with which the state will finance public assistance and other services pending the collection of taxes later, went to F. C. Childs and company of Chicago and New York.

British Have No Diving Bell For Rescues From Sub

Rejected Idea Of Diving Bell For Rescue Work—Use "Davis Lung"

(International News Service)

LONDON, June 2—Rescuing of the 90 men aboard the submarine Thetis off North Wales was being carried out today through the Davis escape apparatus. British rescue crews have no diving bells such as the one which brought 33 men safely to the top from the United States submarine Squalus last week; moreover, the angle at which the Thetis lies would make a bell's use difficult.

Britain rejected the idea of the diving bell—although the United States made its design available to all foreign navies—on the ground that rescue operations should initiate from within a submarine rather than from without.

The Davis apparatus consists of a helmet, oxygen container and life buoy which are strapped to the chest. Men to be released enter a chamber similar in principle to a torpedo tube. When the inner door is closed the outer opens, and the man shoots out.

On his way up he grips a rope which has knots every ten feet. At each knot he stops and breathes for a few seconds to equalize the pressure and minimize the effects of the "bends." The apparatus acts as a life-preserver on the surface, and keeps his head above water if he should emerge unconscious.

Two men can be released every five minutes.

Similar to the Momsen "lung" used by the American Navy, the Davis apparatus was last put to a practical test when the Poseidon sang off China in 1931. Six men came to the surface, but two died.

"Davis Lung" Invention Enables Four To Be Shot Out Of Torpedo Tube

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

LONDON, June 2.—The admiralty officially announced at 6:20 p. m. (1:20 p. m. EDT) today that the forward portion of the Thetis is flooded, thus rendering inoperative the Davis Hatch through which four of the original complement of 94 escaped.

All efforts were being made to cut a hole in the steel hull to admit a fresh supply of air.

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

BIRKENHEAD, England, June 2.—With only four men out of the original complement of 94 brought to the surface, rescue work by means of the Davis Lung was abruptly suspended aboard the sunken British submarine Thetis today to permit replenishment of the submersible's diminishing supply of air.

Surface pumps were brought into play to eliminate foul air in the submarine, whose bow was mired in the mud of Liverpool Bay 100 feet below the surface. The air at present remaining in the Thetis "does not permit large-scale use of the Davis Lung", an official explanation said.

Battle Against Time

Early hopes that all of the men aboard would be taken off alive gave rise to anxiety in view of the diminishing air supply and absence of encouraging new reports. There was a growing realization that the rescue was developing into a battle against time.

Steel cylinders containing compressed air were lashed to the stern of the craft to prevent its sinking. It is hoped the projecting end of the submarine will thus be kept above the water level until air-lines can be attached to the exposed portion of the hull.

Early this morning, four members of the Thetis crew emerged slowly to the surface by means of the lung after 24 hours of imprisonment.

The balance waited their turn to be shot through torpedo tubes to grope their way to safety along a

Parole Board Funds Are Sought

Board Created Without Funds

Governor May Veto Measure If Funds For Operation Can't Be Found

BOARD WOULD SERVE FOUR YEARS

By RAYMOND WILCOVE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, June 2.—The Pennsylvania board of parole act, the most progressive measure for penal reform passed by the 1939 general assembly, today faces a gubernatorial veto unless funds can be found to carry out its functions.

The bill created a uniform system for the administration of parole in Pennsylvania passed without an appropriation, it is discovered after the legislature adjourned.

It was considered doubtful whether Gov. Arthur H. James would approve the measure unless funds could be found to cover the board's expenses.

Felt by penal authorities to fill a long-standing need, the act created a board of parole composed of five members appointed for four years by the superior court. The board would handle all paroles in Pennsylvania with the possible exception of those for prisoners serving less than one year sentences. It was estimated that 8,000 state and county paroled prisoners would immediately come under the board's supervision.

One possible loophole through which the money might be obtained remained, and that was the possibility that $261,000 appropriated to the department of justice for handling parole work could be transferred to the new board. A decision was awaited from Attorney General Claude T. Reno.

was rife throughout the capital. There were reports that the visitors wanted an "understanding" with the administration—to know its intentions on matters affecting business. Other reports said the business leaders went to the White House to insist that changes to the labor relations act be adopted at this session. Another report said they wanted information on New Deal proposals affecting taxes and the utilities.

Those who conferred with the president, besides Hopkins, were Charles R. Hook, president, American Rolling Mill Co.; W. A. PREMIER OF ALBERTA TO CONFER WITH KING to liberal or conservative party ideas, and the Duke of York sits on the throne of England. The meeting today is historic then, if only because it brings together two men neither of whom ranked as leaders less than five years ago.

King Interested

It is important also because the king in private conversation has shown a strong interest and knowledge of various theories of economics and politics and because in his public speeches in Canada he has several times asserted, directly or indirectly, that the British Empire looks to Canada for further development of her natural resources.

Aberhart's social credit theory is in large measure built on the theory that natural resources are money in the bank to be borrowed against.

What conversation king and premier will have today will be at the station where other dominion and provincial leaders will be assembled, at the legislature where there are a number of presentations to be made, or at the station in the evening when the royal party leaves and again there will be others present.

Rested in mind if not in body—they got in plenty of hiking—King George and Queen Elizabeth prepared to quit their log cabin set against the scenic beauties of the Old Rockies and Jasper National Park, and start for Ermonton.

For almost an entire day, the king in grey flannels and worn brown hat and the queen in a blue sports ensemble, rode and walked the Jasper wonderland.

For an entire day and night no one disturbed them, no one intruded on their privacy. Free to come and go as they chose they apparently enjoyed themselves to the limit.

knot-studded life line, equipped with helmets, oxygen containers and life buoys.

When the Thetis went down yesterday, it was said that 79 persons, including officers, crew and testing experts assigned by the admiralty and Cammell Laird, Ltd., the builders, were aboard.

Ninety On Boat

A revised estimate today, however, stated that the complement totalled 94 men.

Marine authorities pointed out, however, that it was a logical step to fill the submarine with fresh air as soon as possible to ease the vigil of the men still left below. The escape tube utilized in the Davis Lung method allows only two men to be released at a time, compelling the last survivors to wait a considerable period before battling their way to safety and sunshine above.

Should serious trouble develop preventing escape through the tubes, the admiralty said, rescuers will be assigned to cut a hole with oxy-acetylene torches in the stern of the sunken sub, which although projecting eighteen feet above the waters of the bay, eluded the sharp eyes of searches throughout yesterday afternoon and last night.

Not Found Till Daylight

The Thetis dived at 1:30 p. m., yesterday for a three-hour test cruise beneath the sea. When she failed to come up on schedule, search was begun, but it was not until after daylight this morning that the pointed grey steel stern was sighted.

The submarine had nosed down into the soft mud bottom of the Irish Sea, burrowing her prow deep into the bottom.

With the recent disaster to the United States submarine Squalus off Portsmouth, N. H., inevitably fresh in their minds, the men still trapped in the submersible kept up a steady "telegraphic contact" with the fleet of destroyers and other rescue ships above, tapping out messages of good cheer on the steeply sloping hull.

Four powerful towing tugs were en route to the scene from Liverpool, presumably to take the submarine in tow after the entire crew has been removed. One of them carried a cargo of food supplies.

The Thetis, a craft of 1,090 tons, is considerably smaller than the Squalus but is of most modern construction.

VANDENBERG IS WILLING

ALTHOUGH Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, presents himself as being merely receptive with respect to the Republican nomination for President, his announcement may safely be interpreted as a declaration of an active, rather than simply passive, aspiration.

The Presidency of the United States is not an office which inspires luke-warm ambitions, especially in men who have been in public life many years, who have lived and labored in the Washington atmosphere and who have an intimate knowledge of the power and the prestige enjoyed by those who finally attain the White House.

Senator Vandenberg, accordingly, deceives no one when he says that he is a receptive candidate for his party's nomination. Actually, of course, he is an eager and a determined candidate, just as all men who once convince themselves or are convinced by their friends, that they have been singled out by a friendly destiny for the rule of a nation.

From this time forward the name of Senator Vandenberg may be expected to loom somewhat larger in speculation with respect to the election of 1940, and his new status may affect the ascendancy of the star of Mr. Dewey, who now holds first place in most of the Republican polls.

More than ordinary significance is given Senator Vandenberg's statement because of his emphasis upon the desirability of a pledge by the Republican nominee that, if elected, he will serve only one term. Presumably, this suggestion is the forerunner of an important aspect of party strategy.

In anticipation of the possibility that President Roosevelt may seek a third term, there is to be a concerted effort to center public attention upon this issue in the hope of thwarting the movement in its very beginning or else defeating it if it actually gets under way.

Senator Vandenberg's statement is a politically shrewd document. Through his insistence that there shall be a minimum of emphasis upon partisanship he makes an appeal to those anti-Administration Democrats who may abandon the New Deal in 1940. He also makes the sound suggestion that the Republican Party should decide just what it stands for and then look around for a candidate who meets the requirements of the situation.

The most difficult responsibility of the Republican Party in 1940 will not be the selection of a candidate, but rather the adoption of those "clean-cut, constructive, courageous principles" which, in Senator Vandenberg's opinion, are so vital to victory. No time can be lost if they are to be offered to the electorate in the next campaign.

WE SHOULD HAVE HOBBIES

Do you have a hobby? You should have not only one but several. Hobbies occupy one's mind with worth-while things and can be educational. A hobby may even make a person famous. Some of America's most famous men made themselves so through hobbies. Some have become great authors because they wrote short stories in high school as a hobby. Others have completed inventions as a result of "fooling around" garages as kids in their spare time.

Not everyone likes the same hobbies. Yet it should not be hard to find hobbies to suit everyone. Some of them may seem foolish but if they furnish recreation they are just as good as the next person's. It makes no difference whether one's hobby is learning poetry or collecting pictures of movie stars as long as it interests one and means something to him.

If you haven't a hobby, start one. Find one that interests you and it will soon become an important factor in your life.

MAIL FROM EUROPE

Mail from Europe arrived on the Yankee Clipper the other day. The sight of one of these "covers" brings home the amazing changes of the past few years as no words can. Even more impressive than the successful linking of continents by plane, is the casual manner in which the world accepts the accomplished fact.

The Yankee Clipper made hardly a ripple on the public mind when it came in. Two hours later her sister ship, the Atlantic Clipper, was on its way East moving on time with the scheduled efficiency we associate with other methods of transportation. The preliminary work has been done so thoroughly and so well that the final achievement seems a simple thing.

The Yankee Clipper's uneventful round trip between Europe and the United States is more than a tremendous scientific victory. It is one more sign of the shrinking of the earth's distances as far as human contact is concerned. Letters actually fly across the Atlantic. In a brief twenty years the phenomenal progress of aviation has become a matter of course.

WPA SIMOLEONS FOR SEMINOLES

The Seminoles of Florida, the only American Indians who can boast that they have never signed a peace treaty with the United States, have at least one thing in common with their paleface brethren: they don't let their pride interfere with business. In theory they are irreconcilables, dwelling upon the wrongs inflicted by white men on their ancestors. In practice they will not spurn money if forced upon them by a tyrannical government. But it must not be regarded as a sign of weakening.

Members of the tribe, who received a bundle of wampum the other day for work on a local WPA project, were confronted by a difficult decision. If they indorsed the checks might they not be accused of surrendering to the Great White Father in Washington? A way out was found. A not entirely disinterested grocer did the indorsing and a bit of good business at the same time.

The Seneca chiefs who recently proclaimed defiance of all New York State laws have something to learn from the braves of the Everglades. Instead of wasting their time asserting their independence, let them try a little spade work, become real Digger Indians, and gather in some of this WPA cash that's floating around while the getting's good. For despite some predictions, the WPA may not last forever.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

WHEN A CHILD FAILS

You and I can only have a heavy heart as we try to imagine how many a child feels when, on the last days of school, his parents learn that he has not been promoted. It is a terrible tragedy if this child has tried to do his best, and still more terrible if he has a brother or sister who has always passed with flying colors.

Imagine the shaming, scolding, even whipping of the failing child! And all to no purpose but to give the raging parent temporary relief. How can it do the youngster any good? His failure is water over the dam. The only hope is in the future—either to make up the arrears in the summer or to win better learning achievement the next school year. And this is so whether the child tried or did not try, whether he studied hard or loafed.

For the loafer who never had learned good habits of mental work, the problem is to cultivate such habits. This may call for some effective guidance and discipline day after day from now on, but not torments of tongue.

Regular Study

If, for instance, your failing child has home assignments at school next fall, see to it that he devotes a regular period of time at a regular place on every night before school.

Do all you can in co-operation with his teacher, and in some instances with the aid of a tutor, to help him gain achievement from his mental efforts. Remember that he can't keep working hard very long if he doesn't feel he is making progress. Like you and me, he must feel awareness of success in order to keep striving at his best. Nothing like success to charge the dynamo of effort.

Now my fellow parent: If you have a child who has failed to pass or be promoted, please do keep your head and act intelligently. Instead of abusing the child and charging him with laziness and good-for-nothingness, or charge he has disgraced the family, observe his record silently.

Learn Causes

Find out from the teacher all you can about the causes of the failure. Maybe you should also talk to the school psychologist. If there is none, it might be well to have any accredited psychologist study your child's case and give you advice.

In some instances the child should go to summer school; in others he should have a tutor during the summer, and in still others he should be helped to forget all about the matter until fall. One thing is certain: Chastisement ought to be avoided and a finer parent-child relationship developed.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

MORE FOR LESS.

Making it possible for the multitudes to satisfy a champagne appetite on a beer income, Harry C. Moore, a Californian, has perfected a process of making the sparkling beverage from a combination of grapefruit and orange juices.

Mr. Moore has named his citrus wine, "Duo Carolus" which, freely translated, means "two dollars", the price of a fifth gallon. His patent covers several phases of the manufacture of champagn from orange juice, but probably the most interesting to the average man is the unique, self propelling cork, which is really two corks attached to the same base.

When one is removed, to take away the sediment which gathers around the cork after a period of settling, the other automatically takes its place, eliminating the waste of clear liquid which takes place under the original method of removing a single cork and replacing it.

This is one of the processes which enable Mr. Moore to cut the time of making his champagne to only sixty days, as contrasted with the four to six years necessary to make real champagne.

POT AND KETTLE

Her great toes were out of her shoes.
The nails of her fingers were red.
A nightmare of various hues
Was stuck on the side of her head.

A veil brushed the end of her nose,
Square cut the shoulders of furs,
But it's fitting to say, I suppose,
The latest of fashion was hers.

She studied me tip-toe to head,
With those lovely but critical eyes
And suddenly, seriously, said:
"You purchase such horrible ties.

"Whatever is offered you buy,
As though you'd no moment to waste.
My dear, that a terrible tie;
I think you were born without taste!"

And I chuckled aloud as I looked
At the milliner's dream on her head
For which she's been recently hooked,
I believe she believed what she said.

LIFE'S LITTLE AGONIES

A certian popular football player had, as most players do—an off day, when he could do nothing right.

The crowd demonstrated its displeasure, and his fellow players looked at him askance, but bore it stoically. The final blow fell, however, when he left the grounds at the end of the game.

A grubby urchin, who had been hanging around the players' entrance, sided up to him and thrust a piece of paper into his hand.

"Here, mister," he said sadly, "here's yore blinkin' autograf back."

We weren't a bit surprised to learn New York now has a Noblemen's club (membership limited to foreign title bearers). But it was a distinct shock to discover the club head is called a plain "president" just like the top man in these anybody-is-as-good-as-everybody-else United States.

NATURAL QUESTION

They generally got away from him at the club before he got under way, but the prize bore of the group cornered a couple of fellows one day after his return from a trip.

"Fellows," he said, "those mountains were wonderful. And dangerous they were, too. Why, one day I slipped on the snow and slid downhill until I fetched up against a rock at the edge of a great abyss yawning before me. Did one of you say something?"

"Yes," replied one of the listeners. "I wanted to know if that abyss was yawning before you got there."

"The drive of this truck rammed my car and now he seems to have run away," Mike complained to have officer.

"Yeth," snorted the policeman. "This truck has been parked here for two days and I'd like to find the driver,too".

Good Taste

Reg. U. S. Patent Office

By Francine Markel

My most restful friend with whom I pay weekend visit never suggests bridge and never turns on the radio unless I especially request it. We divide our time reading, motoring and discussing the best-sellers. The other evening, she said: "My parents left me no money, but a more precious heritage—the yen for good books. When I was a small child, they taught me to enjoy what I read and to look forward to new books. As a result, so long as I can travel, adventure and love between book covers, I am never lonely or bored."

Reader's Question Answered

Dear Miss Markel—Would it be in very bad taste for my father to wear a cutaway coat to my wedding at 4 p.m. when my brothers will not?
MIRIAM M.

Answer—The groom and all of the men in the wedding party, including the bride's father and the groom's father should wear cutaways at a formal day wedding. If your brothers are taking part in the ceremony, they also must wear cutaways. If they are not taking any part, they should, if possible, wear them, nevertheless; but if they have no such clothes and are merely spectators, they may wear dark business suits.

Tomorrow—Expressionless Faces

When some auto drivers hear the least bit of noise in their cars they get it fixed at once. Some others, however, ride in cans that wheeze, snort, rattle, grunt, roar and make noises that would wake the dead. Even some of the living feel like dying when they hear the awful uproar.

We read in a book on the proper care of pets: "Don't let your cat out at night. She may contact diseased animals." From the squalls we hear at night it looks as if they contact sumpin'.

Two local bootblacks are not on very good terms. One of them feels he is quite a bit ahead of another because of a little interchange the other day.

What's What At A Glance

"For Defense" Is Just A Label
Works In Case Of Expenditures
Senator Capper Expresses Views

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, June 2.—"Everything is done now," remarks Senator Arthur Capper, "in the name of defense."

It certainly is a fact. Practically every other proposed governmental expenditure is more or less criticized as extravagant, but scarcely a peep is raised against any request for money that's described as intended for nationally defensive purposes.

The Kansas senator himself doesn't oppose spending, within reason, for honest-to-goodness protection against possible foreign aggression upon Uncle Sam's sides of the two big oceans. There isn't a better pacifist on Capitol hill. Still, he doesn't argue that Uncle Samuel shouldn't be prepared for emergencies—not with the rest of the world behaving as quarrelsomely as in the last two or three years.

What he does find fault with is the contention that every imaginable demand for federal funds has defensive merits.

For example, proponents of the Florida ship canal maintained that that project was defensive. Army and navy experts (who ought to know) spoke of it scoffingly as of no military value. Nevertheless, its advocates insisted that it would be wonderfully useful for our warships to scoot through from the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico and vice versa.

Objectors, of course, asserted that the whole thing would be just a huge piece of boondoggling. They admitted that it would make a lot of work, but they said it would be non-productive work—"made work," as the Socialists call it. Their version is that such work, in an economic sense, is a mere fooling away of time and effort.

Battleship Building

Well, the Florida ship canal scheme went flooey—at least temporarily. It promises to be re-agitated a bit later.

Anyway, every time a legislator hits on an idea through which he hopes to get a nice appropriation out of Washington, for his particular bailiwick, he almost invariably advertises it as nationally defensive, because national defense, naturally, is popular, according to Senator Capper, as it ought to be, he concedes, so long as it doesn't go haywire.

Now, warships?

Building THEM makes work, of a sort. But what's it good for, economically?

England has been strong on warship building, and Lord Inchcliffe, in his day, perhaps was his country's greatest warship builder. He made barrelsful of money at it, too. One might guess that he'd claim all kinds of usefulness for his dreadnoughts. He didn't—not as an economic proposition.

I had an interview with his lordship once in London, in the course of which he observed that a newly-created fighting vessel is a much an out-of-pocket expense to the taxpayers as a merchant ship is to its owners when it sinks in the middle of the ocean.

"A warship costs," he pointed out, "like the devil to build, its upkeep is terrific and it pays no dividends. However, the fact remains that a powerful navy is an absolute necessity to a maritime nation—not as an asset, but as an insurance."

Disarmament was all the talk at the time I had my chat with Lord Inchcliffe. Treaties were being framed to that end, but everyone knew that they weren't "taking" very well. Each of the negotiating powers was trying to flim-flam all of the other powers' negotiatory diplomats.

"After all," said his lordship, "the world can arrive at disarmament easily enough.

"Have warships built by popular subscription."

Self-Liquidation

There's been a deal of sentiment in congress lately to the effect that many of our governmental so-called improvements in recent years have been self-liquidating.

For instance:

Podunk wants a new post office. Uncle Sam builds one. That's advertised as a federal asset. It's an ornament to Podunk, but it doesn't lighten taxation any. How it ever liquidates itself is a mystery. It's awful indirect, in any event.

From my window in Washington I can see federal buildings, shot up in the last decade at a cost many times multiplying the bills for the Louisiana purchase, the price of Alaska and the Mexican war. They are assets, maybe, but I don't notice that they're self-liquidating.

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

Back Of The Crusader

WASHINGTON, June 2.

TWO members of Mr. Roosevelt's Cabinet each of whom has had more than a little public mention as a potential Presidential or Vice Presidential candidate have been touring the country recently from coast to coast—Mr. James A. Farley, the Postmaster-General and Mr. Frank Murphy, the Attorney-General.

THEY present an interesting contrast, not only in their personalities but in their manners and methods. Clear-headed, frank and devoid of any sort of pretense, Mr. Farley's trip was wholly aboveboard. There was nothing up his sleeve, no ulterior motive in mind. He very openly was out to get first hand political information from the politicians and there is reason to believe he got it. On the other hand, back of Mr. Murphy's tour there was a camouflaged scheme evolved by the amateur strategists of the New Deal, the politics of which was carefully wrapped up in the spectacular "drive" of the Michigan Evangelist to "purify politics" and "save the democracies."

SWOOPING down upon city after city in a well-advertised airplane accompanied by that shrinking violet Mr. J. Edgar Hoover, and with plenty of advance publicity, Mr. Murphy fairly exuded statements as he traveled, telling the local press particularly and the country generally what he proposes to do. All the crooks are to be put in jail. The Federal judiciary is to be "purged" corruption uprooted and vice chased to its lair. His pronouncements reeked with words and phrases such as "clean, honest, government," "the unholy alliance with partisan politics," "slush funds," "prostitution and gambling."

AND then there were ringing declarations such as the following in New Orleans: "Pendergast and Manton are only isolated cases. There will be others. I have just started I cannot tell where I will strike—but when I strike I will strike hard." It was all very impressive and a vast amount of pleasing publicity was gained. Mr. Murphy frequently was referred to as "our dynamic Attorney General" and the New Deal propagandists spoke admiringly of his "crusading spirit" and his "passionate love of right. Some of his lady journalists referred to him as "poetic" which somehow seemed the wrong note but was intended to help nevertheless.

UNDOUBTEDLY, an impression was made, but it should have been more favorable if while Mr. Murphy was engaged in this holy drive there had not been an outbreak of publicity concerning the concealed political motive. But the palace politicians were so full of admiration of their own cleverness that they could not refrain from confiding in their journalistic reflectors, who, promptly put it in the papers. It seems that the real idea is to take the shine off young Mr. Thomas E. Dewey, who looms so large as a possible Republican Presidential candidate.

MR. DEWEY's claim to consideration is his record as a prosecuting attorney. His success in breaking up the entrenched criminal gangs in New York and in convicting such powerful politicians as Mr. Jimmy Hines have made him an important political figure. His fight against Governor Lehman last your thoroughly frightened the Administration about the great State of New York and made Dr. Dewey seem a formidable opponent for 1940. Cogitating upon the situation, the political geniuses of the "inner circle" conceived the great idea of utilizing Mr. Murphy's much publicized "passion for purity" to outplay Mr. Dewey at his own game. With the kind of publicity the Administration can provide, with the assistance of J. Edgar Hoover and the ready-made cases of Pendergast, Manton and others, the argument is that in much less than a year, Mr. Dewey can be made to seem a piker in the war against crime, and Mr. Murphy the really shining hero, who relentlessly battles against evil.

IT MUST be admitted that politically the plan is not without merit. For one thing, Mr. Murphy unquestionably does have a "passion for purity" and is the "crusading type." He spoils the picture by overpraising himself and overpublicizing his own righteousness, but that ought not to detract from the general desirability of the kind of "cleanup" he so widely advertises. Nor should the fact that he is addicted to publicity and self-praise and that there is a selfish political purpose back of the "drive" justify disparagement if he "gets through" and gets results.

IT won't do to dismiss Mr. Murphy's efforts merely because besides being a crusader, he is also a professional politician with an oily and unctuous manner. If he gets results no one should begrudge any political benefit derived either by him or the New Deal. They will have earned it. However, more confidence would be felt if the advertisement were a little less blatant and the effort to overshadow Mr. Dewey not so clearly the inspiration. Those things give the "drive" a slightly humbug flavor to which the frankness of Mr. Farley's politics is a refreshing and palatable contrast.

DAILY DOZEN

(From the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania)

Large cities record location of all pneumonia cases.

Most pneumonia cases come from congested areas.

Overcrowded living conditions aid pneumonia.

Congested areas contain 25 per cent of the population.

Yet contribute two-thirds of the pneumonia cases.

Health authorities favor immunizing in such districts.

Protective vaccine may reduce the large number of cases.

Pittsburgh has a higher than average pneumonia rate.

The cause for this has not been definitely proved.

Experiments with protective vaccine have been made.

But only with selected groups such as C. C. C. camps.

Such protective measures may cut down pneumonia deaths.

Dollars AND Sense

● It requires both to keep house and to run a business—in fact, dollars and sense are needed to buy a suit of clothes, aren't they? That is, to buy the best suit for the least money.

We don't make the best clothes in the country, but we do make the best for the price . . . yes indeed, you'll have to pay quite a bit more to equal our clothes in quality, style, fit and tailoring.

Look at our all-wool tropical worsted suits for $15.75. The only trouble is the hot weather has come so soon this year that we will run out of sizes before long.

Then our assortment of sport coats for $12.50 is marvelous. If you want a coat for all year 'round wear, you'll be amazed at what Richman Brothers have made this year . . . a sport coat with contrasting trousers of thin goods for summer and of sturdy cheviot for winter will be the correct thing.

Trousers for $1.95 and upward in washable fabrics—our highest priced trousers are $6.00.

Sixty years of good clothes making —Does that mean anything to you?

HARRISBURG, June 2—Charged with conspiring to levy political assessments on state employes, five Dauphin county Democrats today had been indicted for a second time.

The new indictment naming Robert M. Fager, chairman, and Clyde H. Smith, Frank R. Hean, William B. Freeland and Wendell P. C. Morgenthaler, committee associates, was handed up by the June grand jury after a previous indictment was squashed on grounds the alleged offense occurred more than two years ago and consequently was outlawed by the statute of limitations.

The grand jury also reindicted, in addition to the five Dauphin county men, former secretary of the commonwealth David L. Lawrence, ex-secretary of labor and industry, Ralph M. Bashore, and Democratic state committee office manager Carl K. Deen, on macing charges.

Indictments growing out of the compaign charges investigation also were returned earlier against Roy E. Brownmiller, secretary of highways in the cabinet of former Gov. Geo. H. Earle and three other Democrats. Brownmiller is scheduled to be placed on trial June 12.

Paul Pleads His Own Case

Highlights On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

"I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day."—Acts 23:1.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 4 is Acts 21:27 to 23:11; 24:10 to 26:32, the Golden Text being Acts 23:1, "I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

Today we review some of the most stirring episodes in Paul's adventurous career. The story starts at Caesarea, where Paul spent happy days at the house of Philip, the evangelist.

This man had four unmarried daughters who had the gift of prophesying. A prophet named Agabus also visited at Philip's house, and while there he took Paul's girdle and bound his own hands and feet, and told Paul that that would happen to him if he went to Jerusalem as he planned. Following that all these friends united in trying to persuade Paul not to go to Jerusalem.

Paul was adamant, however, and answered them, "What mean ye to weep and to break mine heart? For I am ready not to be bound only, but also to die at Jerusalem for the name of the Lord Jesus Christ."

So Paul took some of the disciples from Caesarea with him and went to Jerusalem and was gladly received into the house of Mnason of Cyprus. Next day he called together all the disciples and told them what he had been doing and they then told him how the people in the city were bitter against Paul, and had been telling every one that he taught the Jews that they were to forsake Moses and the old Jewish laws.

They then advised him to take four men with him, and all five were to purify themselves before going to the temple, and to show in every way that they were obedient to these laws. So Paul did as they counseled, but to no avail. As soon as he entered the temple there was a hue and cry and many laid their hands on him, crying out that he was the heretic. They threw him out of the temple and would have killed him but for the chief captain, who took his soldiers and centurions and rescued Paul and took him to the castle, and there bound him with chains. His enemies followed, shouting, "Away with him."

Bound as he was, Paul stood on the stairs and told all those present that he was a Jew; how he had formerly presecuted the Christians, and how he was converted. His enemies, however, were unimpressed, and cried out to slay such a man; he was not fit to live. So the chief captain told his soldiers to bind him, and "that he should be examined by scourging," which must have resembled our "third degree." But Paul said to him, "Is it lawful for you to scourge a man that is a Roman and uncondemned?"

When the centurior heard that he told the chief captain, who ordered him loosed from his bonds and commanded the chief priests and all those who accused him to appear next day.

When Paul was brought before the council he commenced his defense by using the words that are today's Golden Text, "Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day."

Here the high priest, whose name was Ananias, told those standing nearest to Paul to strike him on the mouth, whereat Paul said to him, "God shall smite three, thou whited wall: for sittest thou to judge me after the law and commandest me to be smitten contrary to the law?"

Then Paul told them that he was a Pharisee, and that the Pharisees and Sadducees disputed together about the resurrection, and that he preached it. Whereupon these two sects got into such an argument that the chief captain, fearing that Paul would be torn to pieces among them, took him again to the castle.

That night he had a vision of the Lord, who told him to be of good cheer, for as he had borne witness to the faith in Jerusalem, so he would have to bear it in Rome.

Next day certain Jews banded together and vowed that they would neither eat nor sleep until they had taken Paul's life. But his nephew heard them and went to the chief captain, who ordered his centurions to take 200 soldiers, "horsemen three score and ten, and spearmen 200, at the third hour of the night." They were told to take Paul to Caesarea to the governor, Felix. So it was done, and Paul's life was again saved.

Once more Paul made his defense against his accusers. Felix could not find that Paul had done anything worthy of death, but being a politician, he was willing to please the Jews, so kept Paul bound, especially as Paul had no money to give him. Thus two years passed with Paul in prison. Then Felix invited King Agrippa, ruler of some territory in the northeastern part of Palestine, to visit him and hear what Paul had to say.

So Paul told his story, from his persecution of the Christians to his own conversion when the vison of the Lord came to him, and King Agrippa was much moved, saying to him, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian."

Paul having cited his Roman citizenship, however, was compelled to go to Rome to have his final trial, so he was put on a ship, which had many adventures, including shipwreck. Paul finally arrived in Rome, where he was allowed to have his own house and was permitted to preach the Gospel for two years.

With the columns on the court house porch all cleaned, the job of pointing the joints has started. The painters have now swung around to the front side of the court house and before very long the job of painting the court house white will be finished. In the meantime trees are coming out of the Boyles property and later the ground will be graded to conform to the level of the court house lawn.

You should be able to see the time by the court house clock at night in the future. Four fluorescent lamps have been purchased to light the interior and the time should stand out clearly.

Garlic-Parsley an Aid in HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

Medical reports say that Garlic-Parsley concentrate has a double action in reducing high blood pressure. First, it tends to relax tightened arteries. Second, it checks or inhibits decomposition of waste matter in the bowels, a contributory cause of high blood pressure. To get concentrated garlic and parsley in odorless, tasteless form, ask for ALLIMIN. These tablets, used at regular intervals, aid in reducing blood pressure and relieving headache and dizziness caused by excessively high readings. To learn what raises your blood pressure and for medical treatment consult your doctor. ALLIMIN is for sale by all druggists. Large box, 50c. Special economy size, $1.00.

AUNT JENNY Says

INDIVIDUAL STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKES

So light and tender, made this easy Spry way!

2 cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ cup Spry
½ cup milk (about)
1 quart fresh strawberries, sliced or crushed and sweetened (a few whole ones reserved for garnish)
½ cup heavy cream, whipped

Sift flour with salt, sugar and baking powder. Cut in Spry until mixture is as fine as meal. (So quick and easy, compared to hard, stiff ice-box shortenings.) Add milk, mixing to a soft dough.

Knead lightly about 20 seconds. Roll ¾-inch thick. Cut with 3-inch biscuit cutter and place on baking sheet greased with Spry. Bake in very hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 12 minutes. More Employers Need Of Nation Babson Declares

By ROGER W. BABSON
(Copyright, 1939, Publishers Financial Bureau)

NEW YORK CITY, June 2.—The church which I attend at Wellesley Hills has what is called an "Open Door". The church is open every afternoon and evening, seven days a week and 52 weeks a year for those who have problems. Some lay man or some lay woman is in charge of the work each afternoon or evening.

BABSON

There are fifty of these business men and women of the community who are on duty during the year. In addition to being of help to those who call with their various problems, these conferences are of great value in enabling leading citizens to learn first-hand of the spiritual, educational, economic and civil troubles which the less fortunate have.

When the big depression started—in 1930-31—it was the day laborers who were first thrown out of work. The greatest hardship came upon them for they had no savings accounts nor other reserves. As the center of the depression was reached—in 1933 and 1934—another group, including white-collar workers, began to suffer as their savings were used up. Both of these groups have been aided for some time by the WPA and other forms of government spending. The recession of 1938-39, however, has reached the higher-bracket incomes—the salesman, executive and employer group.

Employers Hard Hit

Eight years ago the distress cases were among the poorly-paid day laborers. Five years ago they were among the mechanics and clerks. Now they are among the executives and employers. Recently I was on duty at the "Open Door" session. I had five callers. Three of my five callers were among the executive class who ten years ago were receiving salaries in excess of $5,000 a year and two were employers! This is not only a new development in the unemployment situation, but it is vitally important to every manufacturer and merchant.

These executives and their families have been the good spenders. If this group must now slash their standard of living, it means even less trade and fewer jobs. No WPA or government relief program has yet been devised to help the investor, executive or employer group. In short, an entirely new problem is developing today in connection with unemployment. The employer class is now suffering with all others. Since they are the ones who must provide the jobs, the time has come for action.

Private Ownership or Fascism

If we are to continue our system of private ownership, there must be radical changes in the attitude of the government, labor leaders and even preachers toward employers. Unless the state is to take over all industry and be responsible for giving everybody a job, then it is essential that it help, rather than hinder, our employers. When there is a shortage of work, the need is for more employers. This is the simple and only answer to unemployment!

We are, therefore, facing this situation: Either we must change our American system of government and turn to state capitalism (which ultimately develops into Fascism) or else we must change our attitude toward employers, builders and investors. We have played at this thing too long. Now that all groups are suffering, we can delay the choice no longer. When scores of well-paid executives are forced to sell their homes, slash their standard of living and return to manual day labor, then we come smack up against a problem which has not yet occurred during the depression.

Must Encourage Employers

If the great need today is for more employers, we must encourage employers. The following are three ways this can be done:

(1) Taxes can and must be lowered. I refer to city taxes, state taxes, federal taxes, and the other hundred and one taxes now inflicted upon employers. This, moreover, is not an appeal for the idle rich. As far as I am concerned, Roosevelt can put a 90 per cent tax on the "play-boys". I am asking for lower taxes on homes, business blocks and factories. No matter how much money the federal government is willing to loan for new houses, building will not increase until taxes are reduced. It is the taxes which you must pay on your home and on the addition to your plant that hold back building. Merely lowering the interest rate on mortgages will not encourage you to build a new house if your taxes are going to increase more than what you save on mortgage interest!

(2) Labor must let up on employers for awhile. I believe in collective bargaining. The wage workers of the corporaion have as much right to combine and negotiate through some person of their own choosing as have the stockholders. When labor leaders, however, think that they must get a little more each year for their members in order to hold their jobs and collect their dues, it is very dangerous. Wage workers should realize that their leaders may serve them better at times by urging a reduction in wages or an increase in hours. The current theory about hours is wrong. Reducing hours ultimaetly increases prices so that the net result is a loss in the number of jobs. Only as more is produced, is there more to divide.

(3) Restriction and regulation as to building operations adn other new plans of employers should temporarily be lifted. Every kind of handicap today is placed upon a man who wishes to build a new factory or store or even to put an addition on his plant. I recently wished to have a new toilet put into my building and was obliged to consult four different government officials to make this simple improvement. Employers must now secure city permits, state permits, federal permits, labor union permits, fire permits, smoking permits and various other kinds of permits before they can spend a dollar!

Not only this, but people in the neighborhood oppose the addition on the factory because it will create more noise or something else. The time has come when parents must choose between having noise, smoke and a job for their children, or no noise and no job. In the meantime, employers are saying to themselves, "What's the use? Life is too short." As a result, the number of employers is getting smaller every day instead of getting bigger as is needed in order to create new jobs.

Industry Depressed; Race Tracks Booming

But the above is not the worst. While the number of employers in the basic industries—food, clothing and shelter—is rapidly declining, yet those engaged in promoting gambling, liquor, race tracks, slot machines, night clubs and pulp magazines are constantly increasing. This is the most serious factor of all. The character of our young people is being undermined, while the men over 50 are being thrown into the scrap-heap. I am still an optimist for the long pull, believing that the American people will some day come to their senses. This "some day" must come very soon, however, if the unemployment problem is to be remedied under our current form of government!

Dr. Dafoe's Column On The Quintuplets And The Care Of Your Children

(Copyright 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

CHILDREN'S WEIGHT CHANGES MORE IMPORTANT THAN HEIGHT CHANGES

While the weights of the Quintuplets have flucated, their heights have been a great deal more steady. When they were born, we found that four Quints were all 13 inches long. Marie, the smallest, was just a shade under that figure. During the months that followed we weighed the babies often, but we didn't measure them as frequently because weight changes are a great deal more significant than changes in height. When one of the children gained or lost an ounce, that was an important sign of her condition of health, whereas the addition of an eighth of an inch or so in height didn't make any difference.

The children all doubled their height their first year, and have since averaged a little less each year. Through the five years, the heights have remained even closer together than the weights, for the total range between Marie, the shortest, and whatever Quint happened at the time to be tallest, has never been more than an inch. Right now, four of the children are exactly the same height, 42½ inches. Marie is half an inch behind.

The variations within that one inch range have been surprising. No one child has had a monopoly on the growing honors, for all have been in first place at one time or another—all but Marie.

Steady increase in height and weight can be credited largely to the schedule we have followed. Every day we have watched the children's diet. Everything they have eaten has been carefully watched.

You see, when the children were born, we had to be absolutely meticulous in our care of them. The slightest slip or carelessness would have meant death to one or perhaps more. So we built up a schedule, almost a tradition, and we have been fortunate enough to be able to adhere to that schedule.

This is the reason that I am always urging mothers to make up a schedule for their babies and, having made one that is convenient, then stick to it. In the matter of diet, I know it's nice to give children things they like. But when you do that, you aren't doing the children any good.

GRAHAM OPPOSED TOWNSEND BILL

Among the many Republican congressmen against the Townsend bill voted upon in Congress Thursday was Louis E. Graham of the 26th district. Mr. Graham has been known to be against the provisions of such a bill for some time and during the last election was opposed by the advocates of the Townsend plan.

Eat More Meals To Lose Weight

Eat Oftener But Less Quantities Advise Philadelphia Doctor

OVEREATING HELD CAUSE OF OBESITY

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA.—Want to cut down your weight?

If you do, you should eat four to six small meals a day instead of two large ones, advises Dr. Garfield G. Duncan, of Jefferson Medical College. The two-meal regime makes persons so hungry that there is a tendency to overeat, Dr. Duncan explained.

"I am convinced," he said, "that 90 percent of obese persons are that way because they overeat. Others, however, think that 37 percent of obesity can be explained on the basis of endocrine gland disturbances.

"I am convinced also," continued Dr. Duncan, "that we do not pay enough attention to the early stages of obesity. Insurance companies are taking the subject more seriously the physicians. The companies are aware that obesity is one of our natural calamities—being one of the predisposing factors to serious organic disturbances."

Any adult can add 18 to 24 pounds to his weight by eating an extra dab of butter each meal for a year, the physician declared. He intimated that many who could do with less butter spread it on most lavishly.

Basal Food Explained

"To understand the influences causing obesity," Dr. Garfield explained, "it is necessary to realize that every person has a basal need for nourishment. This basal food is the minimum amount of food, expressed in calories, essential to prevent loss of weight under basal conditions: i.e., at absolute rest, normal body temperature and in the fasting state.

"The basal need for an adult is 1,500 to 2,500 calories a day. A seamstress at work would use up six calories an hour additional to her basal need; a man sawing wood, 300 calories.

"The 200-odd calories supplied by a pint of beer, compared with 330 calories in a pint of milk, usually is ignored, as are the 2,800 calories contained in a quart of whisky—a food value equivalent to one pound of sugar or a half pound of butter.

"Its a small wonder that people who drink a pint of whisky a day—and many who come to our clinic do—become overweight," Dr. Garfield concluded.

War Department Studies Testimony By Maj. Gen. Moseley

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, June 2.—The war department today studied testimony taken by the house Dies committee from Major Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, USA (retired) to determine if his anti-semitic activities warrant official action.

A complete transcript of the two-day testimony was given to Lt. Col. Lawrence H. Hedrick, chief of the department justice section. So far, the department has taken the position that to proceed against the general would be to "martyr" him, according to one high official.

The straight-backed Moseley, who retired last September with a scorching denunciation of the New Deal, is still subject to the articles of war although on the retired list at $6,000 a year. At the request of the department, the committee last week supplied Colonel Hedrick all the evidence it had gathered on the general, but his testimony contained many assertions that were not in the committee's documentary evidence.

Copper derives its name from the Latin word, cuprum, which is shortened from aes cyprium, or "metal of Cyprus". It was from the island of Cyprus that almost the entire ancient supply of the metal was obtained.

'BEHAVIOR CLINIC' CHIEF SPEAKS TO MEDICAL SOCIETY

Dr. Henninger Of Pittsburgh Tells Of Work In Allegheny County

Only two percent of the prisoners turned over to Allegheny county's "behavior clinic" by the courts of that county are found to be physically or mentally diseased and deserving of more consideration Dr. James M. Henninger, chief of the Clinic, told members of the Lawrence County Medical Society at The Castleton last night.

The Pittsburgher said his behavior clinic probably comes in contact with 12 to 15 percent of all that are brought into court. The clinic receives only those the judges feel may have weaknesses and may be worthy of careful examination.

Dr. Henninger said 98 percent of those his clinic receives have no physical or mental troubles and are deserving of punishment. He scored the common belief that criminals are too often "petted instead of punished."

The county society last night, with Dr. F. D. Campbell of Bessemer, the president, presiding unanimously adopted a resolution expressing its vigorous opposition to all movements "directed toward the socialization of the practice of medicine."

The resolution action was referred to the society's public relations committee for any further action it cares to take.

Dr. J. O. Woods was elected the local organization's delegate to the annual convention of the Medical Society of the State of Pennsylvania at Pittsburgh in October. Dr. E. F. Henderson and Dr. Samuel W. Perry, Jr., were chosen alternates.

Last night's program of the physicians was their final one until September.

Parshall told the motor police that he was journeying to the east from Detroit. His legs are somewhat crippled and they gave out on him.

Cascade Pool Opens Saturday

Scale Of Prices Is Arranged For Concessions In Park

Bathing pool in Cascade Park will open at 10 a. m. Saturday under the jurisdiction of the Parks commission, according to Manager C. C. Coulthard. A scale of prices has been arranged for the users of the pool and also for those who use the Dodge'Em and the Merry-Go-Round, as follows:

Pool: children, 14 years or under, 10 a. m., until 1 p. m. 5 cents, which does not include a towel. They may if they desire, obtain a towel for another 5 cents; children, 14 years or over, after 1 p. m., 10 cents for swimming and another five cents for towel, if latter desired.

The cost for adults to use the pool will be greater. They will be charged 20 cents for bathing and checking. If they obtain a towel, they will be charged five cents extra, or a total cost of 25 cents.

Season tickets may be obtained for $4.50.

Life-guards will be on duty at the pool.

The Merry-Go-Round cost will be 5 cents and 3 cents and the Dodge 'Em will be 10 cents and 5 cents. The 3 cent price on the Merry-Go-Round and the 5 cents cost on the Dodge'Em will be a special price for outings, numbering more than 150 persons.

Four Kiddies days will be held this season during which time the price of enjoying the concessions will not be more than 3 cents.

According to arrangements the Park commission has made, the dance pavilion will be under city operation until 4:30 p. m. After that time it will be operated by the concessionaire, B. J. Biondi, who has rented the pavilion again this summer.

SEEK TO PROVE KING COLE WAS NOT SOT

LONDON, June 1.—British clergymen set out to prove that despite the word of nursery rhymes Old King Cole was not a "drunken old soul."

First step in the ministerial campaign to brighten the name of nurseryland's old soak will be a pageant in which the tipsy buffoon will be portrayed in his real role—that of a British Chief under the Romans.

Commenting on clearing Cole's name, Rev. P. E. T. Widdrington, stated:

"We have no evidence that Old King Cole was a drunken old soul. Our material in this respect has been taken from the nursery rhyme, but local legend and old history have led us to suppose that he was the father of St. Helena, who really laid the foundations for widespread Christianity in the Roman Empire."

Although Pennsylvania and West Virginia have been coal centers of the United States for a long time, the first coal in North America was discovered on Cape Breton island, Nova Scotia, in 1672.

"NO ACHES IN MY LEGS NOW," SAYS THIS NEW CASTLE LADY

Tells of wonderful relief Vendol gave by relieving constipation and acting as diuretic to kidneys. Advises everyone to try it.

MRS. CATHERINE BARNES

"I surely got my reward for giving Vendol a thorough trial, because I feel better now than I have for years," said Mrs. Catherine Barnes of 338 Kurtz St., New Castle, in a recent conversation with the Vendol Man in Eckerd's Cut Rate Drug.

"A person gets pretty well disgusted after trying as many medicines as I did without winning relief. It seemed that nothing could bring me the regular bowel action that I needed. This made my digestion poor, too, and even though I selected my food carefully I was sure to be distressed with indigestion and lots of painful gas soon after eating. Worse yet, there were such bad aches in my legs, especially the knees, that some days I couldn't get around very well with my work.

"I read and heard a lot about the good Vendol was doing in cases just like mine, so it was a lucky day when I decided to give it a trial.

"I never had anything to act so wonderfully to relieve constipation and also act as a diuretic to my kidneys, and soon I began to really look forward to mealtime because I could enjoy my food, yet never have a sour stomach, gas, acid risings, or nervous indigestion.

"One of the best things resulting from this was to relieve those aching pains in my legs and back. Now I go about my work without any suffering.

"My advise to anyone suffering as I did is not to put off one day starting Vendol."

All druggists sell Vendol, so it is not difficult to get, and the Vendol Man is daily at Eckerd's Cut Rate Drug, 118 E. Washington St., to explain all about it. So, come see him; learn how Vendol will help you, too.

Nova Wins By Technical Kayo Over Max Baer

Referee Halts Battle In Eleventh Round With Baer Bleeding And Helpless

NOVA WILL GET CRACK AT LOUIS

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 2.—Recuperating today from the worst beating of his entire career of a decade, Max Baer finally has been overtaken by the pugilistic requiem which he had eluded for four years, and over his nearly prostrate hulk stepped Lou Nova, confident now that his ultimate destiny must be the world heavyweight championship. But oddly enough, while he qualified for a promised September title challenge by butchering Baer in eleven rounds last night, Nova simultaneously eliminated himself from consideration for the time being.

He removed all doubt as to whether Baer is through, converting the latter's face into as gory a mess as you're likely to see without knives entering into the thing, and he displayed high courage, sturdiness and a fierce eagerness to keep on wading in where the fighting was hottest. However, there must be a statute against the likes of him being sacrificed to Joe Louis in a championship fight. In any case, the latter probably will wind up his 1939 campaign when he puts the silencer on Two-ton Tarzan Galento on June 29.

Not Very Impressive

Flushed with success, 24 years old and greedy for the things pugilism offers to those who are lucky and adept, Nova fretfully will scramble along reiterating his demands for the title battle he will get some day, but it won't be sooner than next year, or ringside witnesses to last night's stirring blood-letting are wrong.

What Nova did in this, his most important victory, was to show that he is a willing and damaging mixer, though green as the grass around his native Alameda, Cal., and he also was a party to it when Baer finally proved that he could and would take a licking even while making his final exit from before the fight mob, but Baer wasn't very gallant about it. He did several things that it would have been in better taste to omit—even in a prize fight. For one thing, he loudly claimed a foul.

Finally Referee Frank Fullam stepped in and stopped it in 1:21 of the 11th, with Baer still on his feet and with no knockdowns charged against him, but with blood boiling from his mouth, his nose bleeding, his left eye swollen and his breath whistling through his teeth. He was choking on the blood from his cut mouth. Fullam said in stopping it. The blood had nauseated him two rounds earlier. In any case, by this time he was finished.

UMPIRES WILL MEET TONIGHT

There will be an important meeting of the Lawrence County Umpires association tonight at the "Y" at 8:15 o'clock, it was announced. Matters of grave importance to the officials will be taken up for discussion.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

While it may be true the Maxie Baer-Lou Nova fight, which Lou won by a TKO in the eleventh when the referee stopped the fight because Max's face had been slashed and battered, was the center of attraction, many of the folks in the Yankee stadium watched an infant fistic star who may bloom, perhaps two years hence, providing he doesn't fall prey before that time. He is Pat Comiskey, Paterson, N. J., who knocked out Jimmy Quigley, 178½, Pompton Lakes, in 30 seconds of the second round. Pat had Jimmy down three times when the referee carted Jimmy to his corner.

Johnny Woodruff of Pitt and Johnny Borican, New Jersey track sensation, will attempt to create a new half-mile record at the Princeton invitation meet, June 17 . . . Bob Smith of North Carolina, will fight Bandit Romero, San Diego, in the semi-final to the Kenny LaSalle-Fritzie Zivic fight in Pittsburgh, Monday. Johnny Dean, New Castle middleweight, is training with Romero. They were pals on the west coast when Dean was a marine . . . Plans are forging ahead for the Kahle-Ashton Post No. 8, Society of the 28th Division A. E. F. amateur boxing bouts in the Arena here, June 12. Reservations may be made now.

Wilbur Shaw, Indianapolis auto race winner, got $27,405 for his share, in winning . . . . Chance Queen, raced to a track record as she won the Intelligencer purse five-furlong dash, feature at Wheeling Downs, Thursday. He went the distance in one minute flat. The old mark was two-fifths second slower.

Mike Coates Pitches Swell One-Hit Game As "Gas House Gang" Wins 1 To 0

Behind the great one-hit pitching of young Mike Coates, the West Pittsburg "Gas House Gang" topped the Ryantown team last night at the West Pittsburg field 1 to 0. Coates had the Ryantowns eating out of his hand and fanned eight batters.

Bechtol had the mound job for the Ryantownians and let the "Gas Housers" down with three hits. John Marky had the only extra-base sock in the game, a double. West Pittsburg had the lone run in the fourth frame. Robinson spoiled a no-hitter for Coates. Tonight the West Pittsburg team meets the Union Civics in a league game at West Pittsburg.

Very Poor Crowd At New York Bout

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 2.—All the solace Promoter Mike Jacobs derived from the official attendance and receipts figures on last night's bout between Max Baer and Lou Nova was a bad headache

The paid attendance was announced at 16,738 and the gross receipts at $82,364.63.

Only one-fourth of the turnstiles in the Yankee stadium were used and the bleachers weren't even opened.

Unofficially, the slim attendance was blamed on the world's fair which, however, didn't prevent a frenzied throng of 32,574 from assembling in Brooklyn for the night game between the Dodgers and the Chicago Cubs.

Peck Houston Hurls Ecclesian Club To Victory At Lee Avenue Field

Gerson Is Host To Floor Team

Delightful Party Held Thursday Night; Twenty-Six Persons Present

Jack Gerson entertained his 1938-39 basketball team at a delightful party held in the Gerson home, 224 Winter avenue Thursday evening.

During the earlier part of the evening, the group played cards, listened to the Maxie Baer-Lou Nova fight broadcast and discussed the latest in the world of sports. At an appointed time, Mrs. Gerson served a sumptuous luncheon.

Mr. Gerson served in the capacity of toastmaster and gave an interesting address. "I want to thank you young men for the sportsmanship, cooperation and showing you made during the basketball season. I am proud of such a fine group of young men. I hope to have another strong team next year" Gerson said. He also paid a tribute to Anthony L. Conn, one of New Castle's leading sportsmen.

Following the address Gerson presented gifts to the members of the squad and to Conn. Charles P. Walther and Charles A. Landolf, the last two, members of The News sports department. Gerson then called Michael Kulich, coach of the team, who responded with an appropriate speech. Walther and Landolf also said a few words. Samuel Frank who supervised the team, congratulated the group for their showing during the season. Several members of the team spoke briefly.

The occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by the group. Mr. and Mrs. Gerson proved perfect host and hostess.

Those present included.

DODGERS DEFEAT CUBS IN TWELFTH

By PAT ROBINSON
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 2—On both sides of the Brooklyn bridge hundreds of fans today are cashing in on their bets that the Dodgers-Cubs night game would outdraw the Baer-Nova fight.

The ball game not only outdrew the fight, but more than doubled the attendance figures, with Larry MacPhil of the Dodgers laughing over his overflow throng of 34,000 delirious fans and Promoter Mike Jacobs sorrowing over a meagre 16,000 fight mob.

On second thought, that word delirious is an understatement for Dodger fans. If you have ever seen them in action, you can easily imagine the uproar when Gene Moore stole home with the winning run in the 14th inning, to give the Dodgers a 3 to 2 decision over the Cubs, and put the Brooklyn entry within easy striking distance of third place.

Cards Top Dodgers

That put the amazing Dodgers well ahead of the Giants who dropped a 1-0 verdict to the Cardinals.

The Phils proved they could lose just as easily under the lights as they do under the sun and dropped a 5-2 battle to the Pirates who moved into third place ahead of the Cubs.

And the Reds had to travel 13 heats to beat the Bees, 9-4, with Craft slamming a homer in the fatal inning.

The Yanks opened their second western invasion with an easy 8-3 verdict over the Indians, and although Hank Greenberg's 10th homer sent the Tigers off a 3-run lead, they eventually bowed to the Red Sox, 14-5.

The eastern teams made a clean sweep when the Athletics knocked off the Browns, 10-7, and the Senators beat the White Sox by the same score.

Elders Defeat K. Pulaskis 2-1

The Elder A. C. broke into the win column of the City Baseball league last night at Glasser field for the second time this year by winning over the K. Pulaski team 2 to 1 in a pitching battle that saw "Red" Carey giving the Pulaskis three hits, and the Elders winning the game with only one hit off of "Slim" Wilson. The Elders tallied in the first and sixth frames.

The Pulaskis couldn't do much with Carey until the last of the seventh when they scored their lone run.

Anderson Pitches Slovaks To Victory

Slovak Club Wins Seventh City Baseball League Game, Are League Leaders

Leroy Anderson, ace of the Slovak club pitching staff, stood out there on the mound at Clifton Flats field as cool and calm as a man who has just dived into an icy pool and dished up his tantalizing curves in such a fashion that he had the Lawrence Indies bewildered until the first of the sixth, but the Slovaks won the game, 7 to 6, and kept the lead in the City Baseball league.

Fans fortunate enough to be there saw a swell game. The Slovaks clubbed Russo for three runs in the first heat and came back with two more in the second inning, to take a three-run lead. Extra base blows were turned in by Russo, Budai, Fruit, Wrona, Majeski and Mosley. The Slovaks have an excellent chance to win the first half pennant in the City league if they continue to play the swell brand of ball that they have been playing.

Perritta Outpitches Smith As Columbus Club Wins 4-3 In City Loop

The Columbus Club with Benny Perritta pitching a four-hitter, topped the Union Civics last night at the E. & A. field by the score of 4 to 3 in the city league. It was a seventh inning rally at the expense of young "Smitty", the Civics ace that gave the Seventh Ward boys their victory.

The Civics led 3 to 2 going into the last of the seventh. Two errors hurt the Civics chances. The Columbus Club had 11 hits off of Smith. J. Smith, Mash and Marshall had the extra-base hits in the game.

Report Battle On Borderline

Jap And Manchukuo Troops Invade Sector Of Outer Mongola

(BULLETIN)

(International News Service)

TOKYO, June 2.—In a running four-hour battle with outer Mongolian troops, Japanese and Manchukuo troops today invaded a section of Soviet-dominated outer Mongolia, according to dispatches from Manchukuo.

(The fight marked a revival of major fighting along the Mangol-Manchukuo frontier which resulted last week in the death of 150 Mongols. Fifty-nine Soviet-type planes were brought down, said Japanese advices.

Counter-attacking with bayonets after an assault by 1,000 outer Mongolians, the Japanese-Manchukuo force repulsed the enemy, crossed the Khalka river—which marks the border—and occupied the town of Balshagal, near Lake Buir.

Glamour Girls Of Circus Match Beauty With Skill

A bevy of beauties with Russell Bros.' Circus being regaled by a clown's yarn while awaiting their cue.

Glamour girls, charming and beautiful, abound in the personnel of Russell Bros.' Circus, which comes to New Castle on Monday, June 5.

In recent years, feminine beauty standards have been decidedly improved in the better circuses, a movement in which Russell Bros. have been leaders. But beauty alone is not enough. Comeliness of face and figure, essential as they are, must be accompanied by skill and daring, as will be demonstrated in the Russell Bros. performances.

Gorgeously costumed feminine artists will be found very much in evidence in the aerial, acrobatic, wire and equestrian acts that make up the circus' kaleidoscopic program. Some of the foremost arenic stars of their sex are with Russell Bros. A high spot in the performance, long to be remembered because of its entrancing beauty, is the aerial ballet in which scores of lovely ladies perform in graceful unison high in the dome of the big top.

A brightness and vitality characterize the Russell Bros.' Circus throughout. Always presenting a show of outstanding merit, the excellence of its equipment, the high type of its personnel and the friendly courtesy of all its employees have contributed much to its phenomenal rise in nationwide popularity.

Two complete performances are given each day, starting at 2 and 8 p. m. The front doors open an hour earlier in each case to allow ample time to visit the big wild-animal menagerie, which is free to all persons attending the circus.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)

Copyright 1939 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We don't want to stir up any unnecessary alarm, but that story about those totalitarian European ants coming over to Bermuda and conquering the democratic Bermuda ants sounds a bit ominous. It is like one of those unpleasant omens when the "lions whelped in the streets," in "Julius Caesar."

This tale appears in that fascinating new book, "Of Ants and Men," by Professor Carl P. Haskins, of Union College, published by Prentice-Hall as the May choice of the Scientific Book Club. The fact that certain breeds of ants have a goose-step, lock-step state is, I believe, not news, but Mr. Haskins elaborates this observation into a startling parallel between ant and human behaviour, under certain conditions, and discovers social patterns and analogies calculated to jolt our human complacency.

These totalitarians, it seems, are a little yellow outfit known as the Pheidole megacephala. In Madagascar they were peaceful agriculturalists for a few million years, but with their harvests failing them, began organizing, marching and fighting. Then they took to sea, becoming ship ants in this new era of naval expansion.

In Bermuda, the Odontomachus ants had been around so long that not even the oldest settler among them knew where they had come from. They were democrats and individualists, not much given to fighting. Bermuda was rich in ant fodder and they weren't worrying. During the last century, the irredentist Pheidole ants had ridden the ship to Madeira and licked the daylights out of all the native ants. Then, about fifteen years ago, they landed in Bermuda.

Professor Haskins, apparently the only war correspondent covering this intercontinental battle, reports that the victory of the invaders is virtually cinched and that in a few years more the Odontomachus will be extinct in Bermuda. The Odontomachus is big and husky, courageous and, taken ant for ant, smarter than the other crowd. It was the combination of organization and mass attack that gave the decision to the enemy.

Not that the Pheidole have a dictator. Professor Haskins is puzzled by their capacity for perfectly unified mass action, but there is no evidence that it is impelled by the orders of a single ant. Nor is there any evidence that the slave state of the ants is Nature's goal of social organization.

In some of the totalitarian states, it takes so many slaves to feed the soldiers that their state begins to go to pieces, with war and armament finally constituting too great a strain on their productive resources. He is careful not to draw too close a parallel between ant and human society, but it would appear that in the ant world there is an unending struggle of the free state against the slave state. And no slave state is impregnable, even if it manages to feed its soldiers and keep in fighting trim.

After the Pheidole had conquered Medeira, along came the more loosely organized Iridomyrmex ants of the Argentine, small, swift, mobile, and gave the Pheidole a handsome pasting. In this marvelous peep-show of the modern lens, the curtain never falls in the last act.

One thing appears plain as a pikestaff in all these astounding revelations of modern science. Nature is forever trying something and she will never be ruled out for trying.

Consider some of these fantastic creatures which that famous deep-sea gadabout, Will Beebe, has been dredging up from the depths of the ocean. Here's a fish in which the female is about the size of a sheep dog and the male as big as your thumb, barnacled on the side of his mate, and finally absorbed in her body. And she has a long pike stuck in her face, with a lantern on the end of it which lures her food within swallowing range.

It sounds pretty clumsy, but old Mother Nature will try anything once. Among these strange creatures, including the ants, many societies are matriarchal. Solomon made the ants feminine: "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways and be wise." Possibly the lesson he would expound was merely that of diligence. Or could he have been thinking of the necessity for watchfulness against ruthlessly organized attack?
